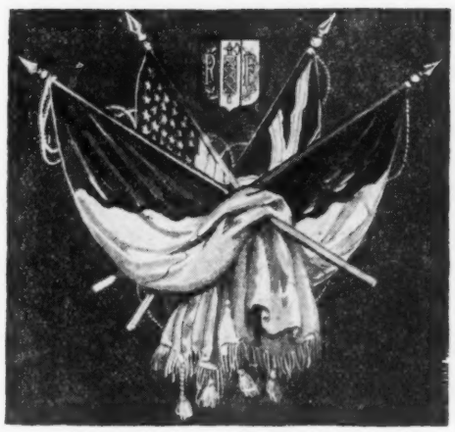
The Most Informing of All War Books — Every Step in the Progress of the War Described by an American Eye Witness

UNDER FOUR FLAGS FOR FRANCE

By CAPTAIN GEORGE CLARKE MUSGRAVE

Here is the complete story, military and political, of the greatest of world struggles. Every page packed with thrills, with human interest stories and yet it is a simple straightforward narrative giving the clearest picture of the whole war on the West front that has been written.



Captain Musgrave has been on the western front almost continuously since the war began. He tells the whole story, as an eyewitness, from the day the Germans entered Belgium until the arrival of the American troops in France. Ready about February 15. Well illustrated. 8vo. $2.00 net.

Appletons' Midwinter Fiction

THE BAG OF SAFFRON

By the BARONESS VON HUTTEN, author of "Pam," "Mag Pye," etc.

Brought up in a Yorkshire village where luxuries are rare, Cuckoo Blundell is convinced that happiness can be secured by purchase. She leaves nothing untried to gain her purpose. She elopes with a wealthy man, who provides her with every luxury but withholds the family heirloom, a jewelled saffron bag. The means Cuckoo uses to gain the treasure and the result makes a story that for continued suspense and genuine interest is far superior to anything this author has done.

Illustrated in full color. $1.50 net.

THE LUCKY SEVEN

By JOHN TAINTOR FOOTE, author of "Dumb-Bell of Brookfield," etc.

Seven short stories by the man whom critics have already declared to be a worthy successor to O. Henry. The stories are little human documents, filled with humor, and touched here and there with genuine pathos—altogether a group no one should miss reading. $1.40 net.

THE WAR CACHE

By W. DOUGLAS NEWTON.

An English staff-officer, a scientist and a young and attractive nurse are the intended victims of a most unusual plot conceived by the German Secret Service Office. Underground trails, and great treasure figure prominently in the story that is, though pure romance, founded on the actual workings of the German Spy System.

Illustrated. $1.40 net.

AN ORKNEY MAID

By AMELIA E. BARR, author of "Christine, a Fife Fisher Girl," etc.

Another delightful story of old Scotland and of love affairs that refuse to run smooth. The scenes are laid at the time of the Crimean War and the fortunes of war play a great part in the romance of four young people who do their "bit" as the times demand. Frontispiece. $1.50 net.

FOR BOYS

THE GREAT SIOUX TRAIL

By JOSEPH A. ALTSHELER, author of "The Young Trailers," etc.

An absorbing story of the great Northwest and of the wars in which the fierce Sioux Nation were engaged. The narrative is true to history and gives a colorful and accurate picture of the manners and customs of the Sioux. Illustrated. $1.35 net.

KEEPING HIS COURSE

By RALPH HENRY BARBOUR, author of "Hitting the Line," etc.

The hero of this latest Barbour story is a boy with a lot of initiative and ambition. He plans to enter Yardly Hall but is greatly handicapped because he is obliged to earn his entrance fee. The story of how he plans to do it and the outcome will surely delight boy readers. Illustrated. $1.35 net.

DON STRONG, PATROL LEADER

By WILLIAM HEYLIGER, author of "Don Strong of the Wolf Patrol."

Don Strong, the hero of Mr. Heyliger's earlier book, appears in this story. In it there is a strong contest for leadership, and the boys are put to many tests before the contest closes. Loyalty and honor are the keynotes of this splendid story that every boy will like to read. Illustrated. $1.35 net.

Fleming Stone Detective Story
VICKY VAN

Lieutenant Colonel Andrews has written the only American book on
LEADERSHIP AND MILITARY TRAINING - -

NOW ARRIVES Charlotte Marlin with her three sums. The altogether lovable successor to "Oh, Mary, Be Careful!" with her three tests for men.

THE APPLE TREE GIRL

BY GEORGE WESTON

The Story of "Little Miss Moses," Who Led Herself Into the Promised Land
Frontispiece in color and 5 other illustrations. Decorated cloth. In a sealed packet. $1.00 net

Altogether winning bright and lovable Charlotte Marlin carves a career out of practically nothing. She planned a great campaign to overcome her unfortunate environment; including nothing less than three, what seemed at the time, impossible sums. Her method of accomplishing her sums will amuse and delight you as it did the honest Dr. Kennedy and the rich Perry Graham. A charming tale.

A NEW FLEMING STONE DETECTIVE STORY

VICKY VAN

By CAROLYN WELLS
Frontispiece and jacket in color by Gayle Hoskins. $1.35 net

Versatile Miss Wells has hit the high spot in this fascinating detective yarn. There is humor and love, thrills and a real mystery. We have read "Curved Blades" and liked it, "The Mark of Cain" and liked it, but "VICKY VAN" beats them all. Fleming Stone, the master detective, now ably assisted by the irrepressible Fibsy, the office boy who played his part so well in the famous "Mark of Cain" case, is put upon the trail. The complexities of heart and justice seem interminable; suddenly the denouement is sprung. You are baffled and always amused by the brilliance of the yarn.

EVERY SOLDIER AND CITIZEN NEEDS

LEADERSHIP AND MILITARY TRAINING

By LIEUT. COL. L.C. ANDREWS, U. S. A.

Will German Women Stop the War?

GERTRUDE ATHERTON

answers this question in her exciting novel of the German Revolution that may come

THE WHITE MORNING

brings home to every reader the fact that GERMANY'S WOMEN are a force it would be well to reckon with now and a force that must be reckoned with when peace comes.

It's an exciting novel—based on an astounding idea, made plausible and natural by Mrs. Atherton's art.

Three powerful reasons for this novel's success :—

It's a startling story, on a real idea, by a writer who knows.
It's theme is vital, up-to-the-minute—even ahead-of-the-minute.
It's price is reasonable—net $1.00.

CARRYING ON 1917

IN 1917 the United States added 10,060 new titles to its national bookshelf, a net loss of 385 titles as compared with 1916, or of 2000 as compared with 1913, the year before the war. As the English and American book production totals have been approximately alike in the past few years it is worth while at the present time to look ahead and attempt some forecast of 1918 in the light of English war-time experience. Following are the totals in the two countries for the last ten years as recorded in the representative trade periodicals:

	UNITED STATES	ENGLAND
1908	9,254	9,821
1909	10,901	10,725
1910	13,470	10,804
1911	11,223	10,914
1912	10,903	10,096
1913	12,230	12,379
1914	12,010	11,537
1915	9,734	10,665
1916	10,445	9,149
1917	10,600	8,131

After a steady increase for the six years preceding 1914 the English figures began an unhurried but steady decrease in 1914 which in 1917 brought the total to a lower point than at any time since 1902. 1915 showed a sharp break in American book production but, with the war apparently confined to Europe and prosperity everywhere on this side, owing to war business, the figures recovered somewhat in 1916. While American publishers can not possibly be called upon to endure the severe manufacturing handicaps under which the submarine warfare has forced their English brethren to labor for many months, still it will not be surprising if our 1918 figures show a further slight falling off—despite our heavy second appetite for war books.

It has been suggested on more than one occasion that a one year moratorium on all publishing, forcing publishers and booksellers to turn back to the notable books of last year and even of five years ago, would prove a not unprofitable experience for the book-trade. Were such an experiment launched with the suddenness of the recent order of the Fuel Administration, widespread demoralization would doubtless result. England to-day, however, with a book production of barely 8000, is experiencing a modified publishing moratorium as compared with her 12,000 title years and, barring serious manufacturing difficulties, the trade is, on the whole, forging steadily ahead.

One of the stumbling blocks in the way of the book-trade is the fetishism of the new book. The bookseller's hair turns gray in the ceaseless effort to reduce the pile of the book received yesterday before to-morrow's new pile arrives; in a great many cases he has sunk back on a reliance on the publishers' advertising to move his stock; he cites this race against the printer in extenuation of price cutting, and he dares not order all that a new book might warrant for fear a newer book will take the wind out of its sales before his counters are cleared. The publishers on their part usually give each new title a push as it starts on its perilous way and turn to its successor. This wasteful plan of producing what prove to be in very many cases short-lived novelties makes the publishing business one of continual speculation and waste.

This year, however, fiction, the prime culprit, is not selling so well as non-fiction, on which the time element is fortunately less important. Furthermore freight embargoes are already causing postponements in publishing dates in certain cases and transportation delays bid fair to continue for some time. Both of these circumstances conspire to offer the bookseller an excellent opportunity for forgetting that January 1 was any different from March 1, May 1, October 1—or any other first of the month. To this end, substantial assistance can be rendered him thru a definite increase by publishers in the emphasis placed by them on other than the newer books in their advertising copy.

The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, in common with many others, would welcome a concerted extra effort thruout the trade to carry on 1917 into 1918. To this end a list including a few of the more likely leaders of the past year is printed elsewhere, as well as the A. L. A. selection of the books of the year best suited for purchase by libraries of limited means, in the expectation that these may be of some assistance to booksellers.

THE one certain way not to "carry on 1917" is to begin 1918 by wholesale cuts in 1917 prices just because they are 1917 books. The individual bookseller has the trade more or less at his mercy but no one who has lived thru the old price cutting wars can see anything but a very dangerous boomerang in such action by any man or "little group of wilful men," however limited and wherever located. A western dealer, himself a publisher of some experience, has recently announced "The Latest Fiction, Regular $1.25 to $1.60, Special for $1.00, 75c. and 50c." As we go to press latest advice indicates that, despite threats to meet this cut on the part of certain competitors, prices have not been broken by other dealers in his city. It appears that the price cutter in question has overstocked and is applying this drastic method of bloodletting as a cure. The argument is naturally advanced that the price cutting is only temporary, one's own affair after all, and of no immediate concern to the rest of the trade; yet in this as in other cases it appears that the price cutting is forcing upon other dealers a condition which they deplore and which they, in their own best interests, have been endeavoring to ward off—even to the extent of themselves offering to absorb part of the surplus stock. At Christmas when there were rumors that the holiday season had left dealers considerably overstocked fear was voiced in a few quarters lest this might lead to price cutting. Fortunately these rumors have proved very largely unfounded; the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has even received a number of reports of as large as or even larger business in December than in the record December of 1916. The trade generally is in good shape, but, as hinted above, good business is no longer the book-trade's only bulwark against a price war: most retailers are becoming more and more convinced that price cutting is as antiquated and mistaken as the old practice which relieved the patient of a substantial portion of the blood in his veins in order to increase his vitality.

THE past year witnessed the birth of a goodly number of new publishing firms notwithstanding the war fever and the business chill that was bound to follow in its wake. Among the more active of the war infants is the Military Publishing Co., and George U. Harvey whose publications met much of the great demand for technical military literature. In general literature Boni & Liveright with their Modern Library struck a rich lead, while Nicholas L. Brown, the Automobile Blue Book Co., The Atlantic Monthly Co., Robert J. Shores, J. B. Pond, The Woman's Press and A. W. Shaw & Co. came into the field with publications to sell thru the trade. In new book-shops those started by women featured the record of 1917: Grace Gholson Book Shop in Evanston, the Gardenside Book Shop in Boston, Cora L. Lambert in Los Angeles, and the Pickwick Shop in Greenwich, Conn., may be mentioned. Among other new shops that opened in 1917 were Doubleday, Page & Co.'s third shop in the Liberty Tower Building, New York, Macauley Bros.' branch in Detroit, the Copley Square Book Shop in Boston, Smith Brothers' branch in San Francisco, Guiney-Pettibone Co. in Dayton, Powner's in Cleveland and the Baptist Book Rooms in Cincinnati. The number of failures in the trade during the year were noticeably small. With the exception of the Burrows Bros. Co., whose affairs are in the hands of their creditors with a hopeful outlook for a satisfactory readjustment, no other house of commanding importance came to grief. W. & A. Bacon Co., of Boston, who added a book department a few years since, failed, and the only others thruout the country that might be mentioned were B. J. Robert Book Co., Dallas; T. U. Davidson, Troy; L. J. Gomme of the "Little Book Shop Around the Corner," New York; Sam C. Westcott, Keokuk; J. M. Stearns, Erie, and H. A. Beebe Co., New Haven. Thus the year weathered comfortably thru extraordinary changes following the declaration of war and if 1918 brings no greater record for failures and as great an activity in new features in publishing and bookselling the trade will have every reason to be satisfied.

AGAIN the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice has committed the mistake too usual in the Comstock days, which it was understood would be avoided under the present administration; despite the understanding that booksellers would in future be warned before the Society descended upon their shops, a clerk was arrested in a downtown New York bookstore last week, without any warning, for selling a copy of Gautier's "Mademoiselle de Maupin." When the case came into court the complaint was promptly ruled out as frivolous and ill-judged. It is a pity that the Society should becloud its work by errors of this kind.

OWING to the non-arrival of the Droit d'Auteur containing the annual book statistics for the countries of Continental Europe, we have been forced to go to press without this interesting section of our Annual Summary Number. These figures will be published immediately upon their arrival.

AMERICAN BOOK PRODUCTION, 1917

THE American book production statistics for 1917 show a slight decrease in the number of publications in comparison with 1916—a total of 10,060 against 10,445, or a loss of 385. Pamphlets, however, which are included in these figures, show a gain of 110 over 1916's figures.

The decrease is most noticeable in importations. Books of American origin have dropped only from 8797 to 8430, a loss of 61, while importations continued to decrease from 1648 in 1916 to 1324, a decline of 324. Books by English or foreign authors manufactured in America rose from 367 to 629 in contrast to the decline which started in 1913 and continued for the next three years. Ten classes showed gains in 1917 and fourteen losses. The losses were in Law, Education, Applied Science, Medicine, Fine Arts, Music, Games, General Literature, Poetry, Fiction, Juvenile books, Geography and Travel, Biography and General Works. The most conspicuous losses were in the classes of Juvenile Books, Poetry and Drama, and Geography and Travel. The decrease in fiction was very slight, tho the total number of volumes of these various fiction titles sold during the year is generally reported to have decreased noticeably. Sociology shows a material gain for the year.

As was to be expected for the first year of America's entrance into the war, the greatest gain was in the department of Military and Naval Science, an increase of 244 from 1916. This was due not only to a marked increase in the output of such established houses as the George Banta Co. but also to the establishment during the year of at least two successful new publishing houses whose output is devoted entirely to this class of books.

A graphical presentation of the changes in the book production of 1917 as compared with that of the five years preceding, especially drawn for this number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, appears on another page.

ENGLISH BOOK PRODUCTION 1917

DURING 1917, 8131 books are recorded by the Publishers' Circular as published in England, making a decrease for the year of 1018 volumes as compared with the year 1916. The falling off has been distributed unevenly over all classes of literature with the exceptions of philology, medicine, agriculture, domestic and business, each showing a small increase, and history showing a comparatively large increase of 147 items. These classes represent subjects brought into prominence by the continuance of the European War, as, for instance, the necessity of word and phrase books for the use of soldiers and others, the demand on medical science, the problem of production, the readjustment of business and domestic life, and the record, historical and general rather than technical, of the war. The quality of the 1917 output has maintained a good level and, combined with so comparatively small a decrease in production in face of unparalleled difficulties of labor and materials, is a great tribute to the vitality and enterprise of British publishing.

It should be noted that in the following classes education includes only books about educational theory and practice, and not textbooks on special subjects, which are classed elsewhere; that under music only works about music are recorded; and that books dealing generally with the European War are classed under history, while those of a technical nature are placed under the heading military and naval. It would be possible to swell the total to a much greater figure by counting numerous leaflets (Government and other), ephemeral pamphlets, the publications of borough councils and other local government bodies, and musical texts. While it is obvious that the total could be increased greatly by the inclusion of all this literary protozoa, the figures would not represent so accurately the book publishing activity of the United Kingdom.

The following totals of the last ten years are of considerable interest:—

Year.	New Books.	New Editions.	Total.
1908	7,512	2,309	9,821

In these tables each publication is counted as one, whether it is in one or more volumes. Serials that appear later as a collected volume are counted as an ordinary book on the appearance of that volume; so that, for example, the series of "Statutory Rules and Orders" issued by the Government, and amounting to several hundred in the year, are counted as one item on the appearance of the annual collected volume. The same rule applies to volumes of magazines, etc. Further detailed information regarding the year's publishing is supplied by the appended analytical tables.

A FEW 1917 NOTABLES

AMONG the books of the past year which have earned the right to be carried over by the trade into 1918 may be named the following, tho this list is merely suggestive and does not claim to be all inclusive:

FICTION

"Mr. Britling" (Macmillan), of course, tho actually published late in 1916, and "The Soul of a Bishop" (Macmillan); Mr. Locke's "Red Planet" (Lane), a yarn of England in wartime in which an old soldier plays father confessor for a very troubled love affair; St. John Ervine's "Changing Winds" (Macmillan), a keen study of Ireland of to-day, showing the reaction of the war upon four young men of interestingly diverse types, one of them said to be Rupert Brooke; Alice Brown's "Bromleigh Neighborhood" (Macmillan), a striking study of New England personalities; "The Dwelling Place of Light" (Macmillan), a study of the old New England and the new by Winston Churchill; "Summer" (Appleton), the character analysis of a girl of tainted blood, by Edith Wharton; Sinclair Lewis's two books, "The Job" and "The Innocents" (Harper), the former depicting the struggle of a girl from a small town in New York, and the latter a romance of elderly lovers; Kathleen Norris' "Martie the Unconquered" (Doubleday, Page), the story of a girl's fight against circumstances; Ernest Poole's fine second novel, "His Family" (Macmillan), dealing with the controversy between the old and the new generation against a background of New York contemporary life; "The Light in the Clearing" (Bobbs-Merrill), a story of life in the North Woods in the early nineteenth century by Irving Bacheller; "In Happy Valley" (Scribner), more stories of the Kentucky mountain folk, by John Fox, jr.; Jack London's posthumous dog story, "Jerry of the Islands" (Macmillan); "Extricating Obadiah" (Appleton), another rollicking Cape Cod yarn by Joseph Lincoln; two novels by Mary Roberts Rinehart, "Long Live the King" (Houghton Mifflin), a Zenda romance, and "Bab, a Sub-Deb" (Doran), an amusing story which does for the girl what Booth Tarkington accomplished for the boy in "Seventeen"; "Calvary Alley" (Century), with a little slum girl as heroine, by Alice Hegan Rice; "Fanny Herself" (Stokes), another of Edna Ferber's clever character studies; Will N. Harben's "The Triumph" (Harper), a tale of the South before the Civil War; "The Road to Understanding" (Houghton Mifflin), the story of an ill-considered marriage, by Eleanor H. Porter; "Temperamental Henry" (Bobbs-Merrill), an amusing study of an irresponsible youth, by Samuel Merwin; two novels in his characteristic vein by Basil King, "The Lifted Veil," "The High Heart" (Harper); Upton Sinclair's "King Coal" (Macmillan), a study of the coalfields; "Mistress Anne" (Penn), in which Temple Bailey solves the problems of a young schoolmistress with two lovers; "The Thoroughbred" (Bobbs-Merrill), a comedy of married life, by Henry Kitchell Webster; "Ladies Must Live" (Century), a tale of pirating among the four hundred, by Alice Duer Miller; "A Change of Air" (Scribner), the first novel of an author who has won distinction in her short story work, Katharine Fullerton Gerould; "His Own Country" (Bobbs-Merrill), an important novel on the negro question, by Paul Kester; "Dumb-Bell of Brookfield" (Appleton), John Taintor Foote's great little dog story; "The War, Madame" (Scribner), a translation of a deservedly popular French cameo of the war; "Four Days" (Little, Brown), a delicately written tragedy of the war, by Hetty Hemenway; "The Three Black Pennys" (Knopf), tracing strength and weakness thru three generations of swarthy Pennsylvania miners, by Joseph Hergesheimer; "The Rise of David Levinsky" (Harper), the life-story of a Jewish immigrant, by Abraham Cahan; "Louisburg Square" (Macmillan), a novel of Boston society, by a new writer, Robert Cutler; the two volumes of Bunner's stories (Scribner); "Mendel" (Doran), a subtle picture of a young Jewish intellectual, by Gilbert Cannan; Robert Hichens' "In the Wilderness" (Stokes); James B. Connolly's volume of short stories, "Running Free" (Scribner); "The Chosen People" (Lippincott), an able study of American Jews by Sidney L. Nyburg; Conrad's "The Shadow Line" (Doubleday, Page), a yarn in much the same vein as his earlier sea stories; Hugh Walpole's "The Green Mirror" (Doran), showing the struggle of a young radical to win his sweetheart from a tradition-bound English family; Mrs. Humphry Ward's pathetic tale of a war-bride, "Missing" (Dodd, Mead); Galsworthy's "Beyond" (Scribner), a study of an emotional and unawakened young woman; Eden Phillpotts' story of Essex oyster fisheries and nursery gardens in "The Banks of Colne" (Macmillan); "The Coming" (Appleton), J. C. Snaith's attempt to picture a modern Reincarnation in a small English town; "Housemates" (Doran), the story of a young English architect's burst from his "shell," and "The Wonder" (Doran), the strange story of a yet stranger child prodigy, both of these last two by J. D. Beresford; Rudyard Kipling's new volume of short stories, good and indifferent, "A Diversity of Creatures" (Doubleday); Conan Doyle's rejuvenation of Sherlock Holmes in "His Last Bow" (Doran); "The Wave" (Dutton), a story or reincarnation, by Algernon Blackwood; E. F. Benson's "The Tortoise" (Doran); "Christine" (Macmillan), the "dark horse" of the year; "Finished" (Longmans), the last of Rider Haggard's Quatermain series; "Limehouse Nights" (McBride), that study in drabs, by Thomas Burke; and the two posthumous and unfinished novels by Henry James, "The Sense of the Past" and "The Ivory Tower" (Scribner).

Chart showing the variations in the number of books published in each classification during the past six years. With the increase in books on the tactical, administrative and scientific phases of war the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY began last year to segregate such books under their own heading; they totalled 94 in 1916 and have this year increased sharply to no less than 338. In the table above, in order not to disturb the accuracy of the sociology and applied science curves, books on the military and naval sciences are classified as in former years: administrative and tactical works under sociologyg, and scientific works under applied science. In addition it should be borne in mind that sociology includes, according to the Dewey classification here followed, economics, government, socialism, etc., as well as the "social sciences." History includes all books touching on the European War, including personal narratives like "Over the Top." Philosophy includes ethics and psychology.

BIOGRAPHY

Among the many notable biographical volumes in a year notable for its biographies stand out "Mark Twain's Letters" (Harper), edited by Albert Bigelow Paine; Viscount Morley's "Recollections" (Macmillan), a notable record of the men, books and events that influenced a notable life; "The Life and Letters of John Fiske" (Houghton Mifflin) by John Spencer Clark; "The Life and Letters of Edward Everett Hale" (Little, Brown) by his son, Edward Everett Hale, jr.; "Audubon the Naturalist" (Appleton) by Frances Hobart Herrick, presenting new and interesting material on the life of the naturalist; Brander Matthews' "These Many Years" (Scribner), reminiscences of a busy life here and abroad; George Inness, jr.'s, record of his father's life in "The Life, Art and Letters of George Inness" (Century); Katharine Roof's excellent work on the late William Merritt Chase (Scribner); Maxim Gorky's continuation of his autobiography, "In the World" (Century); "The Life of Augustin Daly" (Macmillan) by his brother, Joseph Francis Daly, an interesting contribution to the story of the American stage; "My Fifty Years in the Navy" (Little, Brown) by Rear-Admiral Charles E. Clarke; James Gilpin Pyle's "Life of James J. Hill" (Doubleday, Page); "Rodin, the Man and His Art" (Century) by Judith Cladel; "The Little Grandmother of the Russian Revolution" (Little, Brown), edited by Alice Stone Blackwell and comprising the reminiscences of Mme. Breshkovskaya; Frank Sanborn's "Life of Henry D. Thoreau" (Houghton Mifflin); "John Keats, His Life and Poetry, His Friends, Critics and After Fame" (Scribner's), a definitive work on Keats, by Sidney Colvin; "Li Hung Chang" (Holt) by J. O. P. Bland; Hamlin Garland's "A Son of the Middle Border" (Macmillan); and "An American In the Making" (Harper) by M. E. Ravage.

TRAVEL

The shortening list of travel books includes: "Vagabonding Down the Andes" (Century Co.), by Harry A. Franck, almost the best thing we have had yet from Mr. Franck's pen; "Brazil To-day and To-morrow" by Lillian Edwyn Elliott (Macmillan); "The Brazilians and Their Country" by Clayton S. Cooper (Stokes); Hyatt Verrill's "Book of the West Indies" (Dutton); Waldemar Westergaard's "The Danish West Indies" (Macmillan); "American Adventures" (Century Co.), by Julian Street and Wallace Morgan, who started all unarmed to travel about the United States; Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Rambles in Old College Towns" (Dodd, Mead & Co.); Mildred Cram's "Old Seaport Towns of the South" (Dodd, Mead & Co.); "Voyages on the Yukon and Its Tributaries" by Hudson Stuck (Scribner); "On the Head Waters of Peace River" (Scribner), a record of canoeing in the Canadian Rockies, by Paul Leland Haworth; "The Cruise of the Corwin," from the journal of John Muir (Houghton Mifflin); "The Adirondacks" by T. Morris Longstreth (Century); "The Romance of Old Japan" by Elizabeth W. and Frere Champney (Putnams); Alfred Hitchcock's "Over Japan Way" (Holt); "Japan Day by Day" by Edward S. Morse (Houghton Mifflin); Helen Henderson's "A Loiterer in New York" (Doran); "The Book of New York" by Robert Shackleton (Penn); Anna Alice Chapin's "Greenwich Village" (Dodd, Mead); "Old Roads Out of Philadelphia" (Lippincott), by John T. Faris; Archie Bell's "A Trip to Lotus Land" (Lane); "Pioneering Where the World Is Old," an unusual volume about an unusual journey in Manchuria, by Alice Tisdale (Holt).

POETRY

Among the important volumes of poetry and poetry criticism of the year are: Amy Lowell's "Tendencies in Modern American Poetry" (Macmillan), discussing six leading American poets; "The Oxford Book of English Mystical Verse" (Oxford); William Stanley Braithwaite's "Anthology of Magazine Verse for 1917" (Small, Maynard); Nadine Jarintzov's "Russian Poets and Poetry" (Longmans), one of the first metrical translations of Russian verse, including much biographical and critical matter; "The New Poetry, an Anthology" (Macmillan), compiled by Harriet Monroe and Alice Corbin Henderson; "Grenstone Poems" (Stokes), lyrics by Witter Bynner; "The Chinese Nightingale" (Macmillan) by Vachel Lindsay; "The Red Flower" (Scribner), war-time poems by Henry Van Dyke; Sara Teasdale's "Love Songs" (Macmillan); "Portraits and Protests" (Holt) by Sarah Cleghorn; a collection of the poems of Wilfrid Wilson Gibson "Poems 1904-1917" (Macmillan); Louis Untermeyer's "Heine," a notable collection of Heine's lyrics done into English; Walter de la Mare's delicate phantasies, "Peacock Pie" (Holt); Louis Untermeyer's "These Times" (Holt); and Ralph Hodgson's Poems" (Macmillan); "Weights and Measures" (Doubleday, Page) by "F. P. A."; a collection of the poems of Frank Dempster Sherman (Houghton Mifflin); the collected poems of a new English poet, James Elroy Flecker (Doubleday, Page); and Emile Verhaeren's "Afternoon" (Lane); and a new edition of the poems of H. C. Bunner (Scribner).

HISTORY

Among the important histories of the year are: Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer's "History of the United States Since the Civil War" (Macmillan), the first of a proposed five-volume work; Edward Channing's "Federalists and Republicans," a fourth volume in his "History of the United States" (Macmillan); the remarkable one volume "History of the Civil War" by James Ford Rhodes; Gilbert K. Chesterton's "Short History of England" (Lane), which takes the somewhat unusual and perhaps to be expected view that England has not altogether improved since mediæval times; Charles Downer Hazen's "Alsace-Lorraine Under German Rule" (Holt), the best thing yet to appear in America on this subject; Jean Bracq's vivid "The Provocation of France" (Oxford University Press), and Archcibald Cary Coolidge's "The Origins of the Triple Alliance" (Scribner).

WAR BOOKS

Among books dealing with the war are conspicuous volumes of personal experiences such as Empey's "Over the Top" (Futnam), which sold 350,000 copies in seven months; "Private Peat" (Bobbs-Merrill), a Canadian soldier's account of trench life; "A Student in Arms" by Donald Hankey (Dutton); "Crumps," the plain tale of a Canadian who went, by Louis Keene (Houghton Mifflin); "Letters and Diary of Alan Seeger" (Scribner); "On the Right of the British Line" (Scribner) by an English captain, Gilbert Nobbs; "How to Live at the Front" (Lippincott), conditions of trench life explained by Hector MacQuarrie; "All In It: Ki Carries On" (Houghton Mifflin), Ian Hay's continuation of his popular "The First Hundred Thousand"; "Under Fire" (Dutton), a translation of Henri Barbusse's remarkable "story of a squad"; Ambassador Gerard's "My Four Years in Germany" (Doran); "On the Edge of the War Zone" by Mildred Aldrich (Small, Maynard), continuing the narrative begun in "The Hilltop on the Marne"; "My Home in the Field of Mercy" (Doran), showing how Frances Wilson Huard turned her home into a hospital; "A Journal from Our Legation" (Doubleday, Page), Hugh Gibson's journal when secretary of the Belgian Legation; "Fighting for Peace" (Scribner), an indictment of "the Potsdam gang" by Henry Van Dyke; "My War Diary" (Scribner) by Madame Waddington; volumes 8 to 18 in "Nelson's History of the War" by John Buchan; Conan Doyle's two volumes of his "History of the War"; "The Plattsburg Manual" (Century), a popular work on the first principles of soldiering by Lieutenants O. Ellis and E. B. Garey; "Topography and Strategy in the War" (Holt) by Douglas W. Johnson; "Why Men Fight" (Century) by Bertrand Russell; and "The Pan-German Plot Unmasked" (Scribner), Berlin's peace trap of the drawn war by André Chéradame.

JUVENILES

A few of the juveniles of the year are: "Understood Betsy" (Holt), Dorothy Canfield's study of a little girl who found herself; Abbie Farwell Brown's "Surprise House" Thornton Burgess, "Mother Westwind 'When' prises; a new volume from Lucy Fitch Perkins' "The Belgian Twins" (Houghton Mifflin), a touching little tale of the war; from Thornton Burgess "Mother Westwind 'When' Stories" (Little, Brown), telling what happened when the world was young; "The Little Match Man" (Penn), by Luigi Barzini, about a toy that came alive; "Sons of Eli" by Ralph D. Paine (Scribner); Ralph Henry Barbour's, "Hitting the Line" (Appleton); William Heyliger's "The County Pennant" (Appleton); "The Boy with the U. S. Weather Men" by Francis Rolt-Wheeler (Lothrop); "'Girls in Bookland" (Doran), a literary fairy tale by Hildegarde Hawthorne; and an adaptation of Fabre's "Souvenirs Entomologiques" (Dodd, Mead).

MISCELLANEOUS

Other departments include: "Creative Intelligence" by John Dewey and others (Holt); "The Philosophy of William James" (Holt), translated from the French of T. Flournoy; "God, the Invisible King" (Macmillan), by H. G. Wells; "The Will to Freedom" (Scribner), by John Neville Figgis; "Religion for To-day" by John Haynes Holmes (Dodd, Mead); "The Origin and Evolution of Life" by Henry Fairfield Osborn (Scribner); Freud's "Delusion and Dream" (Moffat, Yard); "Applied Psychology" by H. Thirty books were represented in the Bookman's lists, about the same number as in past years. Of the books of 1917 nineteen were written by men and eleven by women. Eleven books by English, Canadian and foreign authors appear in the list, making a decided increase over last year's four books by foreign authors.

WHAT MADE THE BEST-SELLERS OF 1917?

THE various causes to which may be attributed the "best" part of a best-seller include:

The quality of the reading matter.
The prominence of the author.
The author's previous book.
Advertising.
A catching title.
A compelling jacket.
Illustrations that illustrate.
Timeliness.
Luck.

Rarely does one of these qualities alone make a best-seller, even more rarely do they all occur in one book. More or less generous advertising is the only quality in common to all best-sellers.

Limiting our survey to the first twenty-five titles of fiction for 1917, according to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY consensus appearing elsewhere, not one of these fiction best-sellers was a first book by a new author. Established reputation would then seem from this superficial survey to be a sine qua non. Undoubtedly an established reputation helps get a book off to a fast start: witness "Mr. Britling," which has passed the 350,000 mark in fifteen months. Yet one has to go no further than Mr. Wells' latest book for an upset for this "by-a-well-known-author" theory. "The Soul of a Bishop," altho it started with the usual Wellsian dash and had not only the success of its predecessor but a good title and good subject as well to help it, has already gone "stale" as a heavy seller. Empey's "Over the Top" is, of course the classic instance of the year of a book by a brand new author which nevertheless marched straight to the fore and stayed there. Just as "Mr. Britling Sees It Thru" combines excellent title, excellent text, timeliness, noted author, and abundant advertising, so "Over the Top" combines an even better title, poor text from a literary standpoint but most effective for the slashing job in hand, the quintessence of timeliness, an unknown author, and some of the most extensive advertising, both personal and typographical, ever given a book.

The publisher's name and general standing has practically nothing do do with sales as it is generally admitted that the greater public doesn't distinguish Henry Holt & Co. from a publisher of subscription or authors' books.

The element of luck is best illustrated, perhaps, in that enfant terrible among the books of the year, the anonymous "Christine." The anonymous dodge is so old that its grateful offspring have become legion. Sometimes it works after a fashion, sometimes it falls flat and the book is buried in the grave where all such bad publishing dreams sleep, but then sometimes a big publisher turns the trick handsomely—thereby renewing the faith of the publishing fraternity in the possibilities of the game and we are in for a new cycle of anonymous exploits! "Christine" appeared one day last fall quite demurely in a dark green dress. Then somebody or other like Professor Phelps of Yale set a modest snowball of gossip about its authorship rolling and —voila a best-seller!

The problem of effective titles introduces a fertile field for speculation. The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY published about six years ago the comments of various authors upon titles and their value as assets in the sale of novels. George Barr McCutcheon, for example spoke of "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" as the best of all modern titles, and maintained that a book with a name like that would have to be very poor indeed to fail utterly of success. The following off hand comparative list of positive and negative titles was drawn up:

POSITIVE	NEGATIVE
The Prisoner of Zenda	Ben Hur
Ships that Pass in the Night	Trilby
When Knighthood Was in Flower	Richard Carvel
To Have and to Hold	Janice Meredith
The Right of Way	The Honourable Peter Stirling
Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush	David Harum
The Choir Invisible	Hugh Wynne
The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come	Eben Holden
The Beloved Vagabond	The Virginian
The Call of the Wild	The Crisis
In the Bishop's Carriage	The Crossing
The Masquerader	Oliver Horn
The Silent Places	The Christian
The Blazed Trail	Audrey
The Lightning Conductor	Joseph Vance
The House of Mirth	Septimus
The Garden of Allah	Red Rock
The Hound of the Baskervilles	Rebecca
The Leopard's Spots	Graustark
The Danger Mark	The Deliverance
The Firing Line	Old Gordon Graham
The Lady of the Decoration	Sir Mortimer
50-40 or Fight	My Friend Prospero
The Port of Missing Men	Beverley of Graustark
The Brass Bowl	Coniston
The Trail of the Lonesome Pine	Jane Cable
The Man in Lower Ten	Katrine
A Certain Rich Man	The Rosary
When a Man Marries	A Modern Chronicle
It Never Can Happen Again	John Marvel
	Gordon Keith
	Monsieur Beaucaire
	The Doctor
	The Princess Virginia
	The Weavers
	Peter
	Mr. Crewe's Career
	Lewis Rand

In this matter one guess is about as good as another but the titles among the first twenty-five according to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY's consensus might be grouped as follows:

POSITIVE	NEGATIVE
Mr. Britling Sees It Through	Wildfire
The Light in the Clearing	In the Wilderness
The Red Planet	The Definite Object
His Family	Christine
The Road to Understanding	When a Man's a Man
The Hundredth Chance	Long Live the King!

I. LEGISLATION

THE Sixty-fourth Congress closed without action by the Senate on the two copyright bills described in my last year's report, which had been passed by the House and referred to the Senate Committee on Patents, namely, H. R. 8356* and H. R. 13981.†

[*Amending secs. 28 and 30 to extend protection specifically to works protected under earlier acts, thereby avoiding a possible ambiguity of wording, and also changing the word "piratical" in sec. 30 to "infringing."]

[†Amending sec. 12 to provide for substitute means of deposit in the case of bulky or fragile articles.]

On August 4, 1916, a bill was introduced in the House of Representatives by Hon. George S. Graham (H. R. 17294, 64th Cong., 1st sess.)[1] to provide a remedy for failure to make deposit of the required copies within the time fixed by the statute, by legalizing such deposits made prior to January 1, 1917. The bill was referred to the House Committee on Patents.

Two copyright bills have been reintroduced during the first session of the Sixty-fifth Congress. On April 3, 1917, Hon. Charles B. Smith, of New York, presented (as H. R. 343)[2] his former bill (H. R. 13348) amending section 25 of the act of 1909 to provide that the maximum damages for infringement by a newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph, print, or pictorial illustration shall be $250; and amending section 40, providing for the costs of a suit to add the proviso "that if only the minimum amount specified in this act for damages shall be awarded, each party shall pay his own costs." The bill was referred to the Committee on Patents and ordered to be printed.

On the same day (Apr. 3, 1917) Hon. Luther W. Mott presented the bill (H. R. 365)[3] proposing to add to the list of classes of copyright works named in section 5 of the Copyright Act of March 4, 1909, "Labels, trade-marks, firm names, and special designs, pictures, prints, wrappers, cartons, containers, and advertisements which are specifically created for individual trades, manufacturers, or businesses, engraved, printed, colored, or produced in any manner whatsoever." The bill was referred to the Committee on Patents and ordered to be printed.

In my last year's report I reported on various bills which had been presented to Congress up to April 15, 1916, proposing legislation to secure copyright for designs for articles of manufacture. On August 4, 1916, a new draft of the original bill was presented to the House by Hon. Martin A. Morrison (H. R. 17290).[4] This bill was favorably reported by the House Committee on Patents on August 18, 1916 (H. R. Report No. 1125).[5]

The bill as favorably reported to the House was introduced to the Senate by Hon. Thomas Taggart on August 22, 1917 (S. 6925)[6], was read twice and referred to the Committee on Patents. Public hearings on the bill were had before a subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Patents on January 24, 1917,[7] but the bill was not reported. On February 9, 1917, Hon. Martin A. Morrison, at that time chairman of the House Committee on Patents, presented a revised bill (H. R. 20842)[8] which was ordered to be printed and referred to the Committee on Patents. No further action is recorded.

The various bills "to amend and revise the laws relating to printing and binding and the distribution of publications for Congress" reported on in my last year's report (p. 193) had contained a provision that "no Government publication nor any portion thereof shall be copyrighted." The revised bill introduced in the Senate by Hon. William E. Chilton on January 10, 1917 (S. 7795),[9] contained a definition of "Government publication" and the prohibition of copyright quoted above (sec. 18, par. 1). The Senate Committee submitted a detailed report on this bill on January 11, 1917,[10] which report contained a reference to the clause concerning copyright. This bill passed the Senate on February 6, 1917. The House of Representatives has taken no action upon the Senate bill; but on February 22, 1917, a substitute bill (H. R. 21021)[11] was introduced in the House by Hon. Henry A. Barnhart. In this draft, section 18, containing the provision quoted prohibiting copyright in Government publications has been stricken out.

II. International Copyright Relations

The only action to report during the fiscal year concerning copyright relations between the United States and foreign countries is the issuance of the proclamation by the President on February 9, 1917, extending to citizens of New Zealand the benefits of section 1 (e) of the Copyright Act of March 4, 1909, to secure "copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically the musical work, in the case of such musical compositions by the composers of New Zealand as have been published since December 1, 1916, and have been duly registered for copyright in the United States."

This proclamation was isued by agreement in exchange for an Order in Council by the Governor of New Zealand, dated February 2, 1916, to go into effect on December 1, 1916, to secure protection in New Zealand for the unpublished works of American authors.[12]

This New Zealand Order in Council is in exact agreement with the similar British Order of February 3, 1915, to secure copyright protection for the unpublished works of American authors in exchange for the extension to British composers of the benefits of section 1 (e) of our Copyright Act of 1909, to enable them to control the reproduction of their musical works by means of mechanical contrivances, such as perforated music rolls or musical records. By the terms of the British Order the protection for unpublished works by American authors was extended to Great Britain and the British Colonies and Possessions with the express exception of the self-governing dominions of Australia, New Zealand, Canada, Newfoundland, and South Africa.

Our International Copyright Relations

More than a quarter of a century has now elapsed since the copyright protection granted by law in the United States was extended to the works of foreign authors, under certain conditions, by the provisions of the Copyright Act of March 3, 1891. The fundamental condition was the existence of reciprocal protection in the foreign country, and this was to be determined from time to ime by proclamation of the President.[13]

[12] This order directs that the Copyright Act of 1913 of New Zealand shall apply.

"(a) To literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works the authors whereof were at the time of the making of the works citizens of the United States of America, in like manner as if the authors had been British subjects:

"(b) In respect of residence in the United States of America, in like manner as if such residence had been residence in New Zealand:

"Provided that—(i) the term of copyright within New Zealand shall not exceed that conferred by the law of the United States of America: (ii) the enjoyment of the rights conferred by this Order shall be subject to the accomplishment of the conditions and formalities prescribed by the law of the United States of America: (iii) in the application to existing works of the provisions of section 32 of the Copyright Act, 1913, the commencement of this Order shall be substituted for the 1st July, 1913, in paragraph (b) of subsection (1)."

The full texts of the Order in Council and the President's Proclamation are printed as Addenda 1 to this Report, pp. 183-185.

[13] Section 13 of the act of 1891 provides: "That this act shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation when such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as [to] its own citizens; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may, at its pleasure, become a party to such agreement."

copyright act went into effect), the President issued the first copyright proclamation under the provisions of the act in behalf of the authors of Belgium, France, Great Britain and the British possessions, and Switzerland.[14]

The protection extended in the United States to the authors of each of these countries was that accorded by our copyright laws and could only be secured upon full compliance with all the conditions and formalities prescribed by those laws. Registration was required in our copyright office upon the obligatory deposit ("on or before the day of publication in this or any foreign country") of a "printed copy of the title" of the author's work; and the deposit was insisted upon of two copies of every published work "not later than the day of publication thereof in this or any foreign country," as well as "a copy of every subsequent edition wherein any substantial changes shall be made." Each copy of every work was required to carry the copyright notice, and in the case of some works (chromos, lithographs, and photographs) the law required them to be remanufactured in the United States, while the author of a book, whether he was a native or foreigner, could not protect it at all unless it had been printed in this country from type set within the limits of the United States; and to lend support to this printing requirement the general importation was prohibitited of copies not so printed. A foreign author, therefore, was obliged to arrange for and complete the reprinting of his book in the United States before he could safely proceed with its publication in his own country, and he was under the necessity, moreover, to deposit such reprinted copies here (after antecedent registration of the title) not later than the day upon which his book was published abroad. These requirements proved a serious burden on the foreign author and greatly curtailed the protection which he could actually secure under our copyright laws. The obligation to reset in the United States books printed in languages other than English proved practically prohibitive of any protection at all, and prevented the foreign author of such books from securing copyright in the United States. Under the amendatory acts of January 7, 1904, and March 3, 1905, ad interim protection was provided for terms of one and two years and the extension of the protection to the full term of copyright was secured if an American edition, either of the original foreign work or of an English translation, were produced within the period of the ad interim term. The act of March 4, 1909, finally excepted from the requirement to reprint a book in the United States if it were "a book of foreign origin in a language or languages other than English." This act further abolished the useless preliminary filing of the title page, and by the amendatory act of March 28, 1914, it was provided that one copy could be deposited in lieu of two, "if the work is by an author who is a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation and has been published in a foreign country," and this deposit is not required to be made until after the publication of the work in the author's own country.

The act of March 4, 1909, amended the law "to secure copyright controlling the parts of instruments serving to reproduce mechanically a musical work," and presidential proclamations have been issued to secure that right in the United States for the citizens or subjects of Germany (December 8, 1910); Belgium, Luxemburg, and Norway (June 14, 1911); Cuba (November 27, 1911); Hungary (October 15, 1912); Great Britain (not including Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, or South Africa—January 1, 1915); Italy (May 1, 1915); New Zealand (February 9, 1917).

With Latin America our copyright relations began with the issuance of presidential proclamations, under the act of March 3, 1891, in behalf of Mexico (February 27, 1896); Chile (May 25, 1896); Costa Rica (October 19, 1899); and Cuba (November 17, 1903); securing to the authors of these countries access to the benefits accorded by our copyright laws upon compliance with the formalities prescribed by those laws.

On April 9, 1908, the President proclaimed the Convention between the United States and other powers on literary and artistic copyrights, signed at the City of Mexico on January 27, 1902. This treaty (the second Pan-American copyright convention) went into effect on July 1, 1908, as between the United States and Costa Rica, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Salvador. This was superseded by the Convention on Literary and Artistic Copyright (the fourth Pan-American copyright convention) signed at Buenos Aires on August 11, 1910, by the United States and all the Central and South American States, except Bolivia. It was ratified on March 12, 1911, but was not proclaimed until July 13, 1914, as then in effect between the United States and the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, and Panama. Notice has been received of the subsequent adhesion to this convention of Bolivia, Brazil, Costa Rica, Paraguay, and Salvador. Under article one of this treaty "The signatory States acknowledge AND PROTECT the rights of Literary and Artistic Property in conformity with the stipulations of the present Convention." Article two enumerates the "Literary and artistic works" protected (books, music, original works of art,, etc.) including, finally, "all productions that can be published by any means of impression or reproduction." Article three of the Convention provides that—

[14] By subsequent proclamations issued at different dates copyright privileges in the United States have been extended on the dates stated to the authors of the following European countries: Apr. 15, 1892, Germany; Oct. 31, 1892, Italy; May 8, 1893, Denmark; July 20, 1893, Portugal; July 10, 1895, Spain; Nov. 20, 1909, The Netherlands; July 1, 1905, Norway; Sept. 20, 1907, Austria; June 29, 1910, Luxemburg; May 26, 1911, Sweden; Oct. 4, 1912, Tunis; Oct. 15, 1912, Hungary, the first European country with which the United States made a copyright treaty.

"The acknowledgement of a copyright obtained in one State, in conformity with its laws, shall produce its effects of full right, in all the other States, without the necessity of complying with any other formality, provided always there shall appear in the work a statement that indicates the reservation of the property right."

The first treaty by the United States dealing exclusively with copyright was negotiated with Japan and was signed at Tokio on November 10, 1905, and was proclaimed by the President on May 17, 1906. It was followed by two treaties with Japan signed at Washington on May 19, 1908, and proclaimed on August 11, 1908, for the reciprocal protection in China and Korea for patents for inventions, designs, trade-marks, and copyrights.

COPYRIGHT RELATIONS WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND THE BRITISH DOMINIONS

Our copyright relations with Great Britain were established by the President's proclamation of July 1, 1891 (in accordance with the provisions of section 13 of the act of March 3, 1891), and were confirmed by the proclamation of April 9, 1910, following the enactment of the consolidated copyright statute of March 4, 1909. The new copyright privilages accorded by section 1 (e) of that act (to control the reproduction of music by mechanical instruments) were extended to Great Britain on January 1, 1915, and to New Zealand on December 1, 1916, in exchange, in the case of each country, for an Order in Council securing to citizens of the United States protection in Great Britain and New Zealand for their unpublished works.

The copyright relations between the United States and Great Britain, which have now existed for more than a quarter of a century, have never been either complete or satisfactory. They have never been nor are they now in any exact sense "reciprocal." The protection accorded American authors has been incomplete and inadequate and especially uncertain and unsatisfactory as regards security for literary property in Canada and Australia. On the other hand, the authors of Great Britain and her English-speaking dominions have found their copyright protection in the United States heavily handicapped, in the case of books and prints, by the requirement of remanufacture in the United States. The privileges conferred have also been burdened with compulsory registration and the obligation to deposit copies.

The exigencies of the great war have brought hampering conditions of a new kind thru the necessity upon the part of Great Britain to prohibit the importation of printed books and music "imported otherwise than in single copies thru the post." This prohibition has put a stop to the usual methods taken by American publishers for securing the publication of their works, especially music, in England; and it has become very difficult, if not almost impossible, to take the steps required by the British Copyright Act in order to secure copyright in Great Britain for published works by American authors. This embargo upon printed books and music also prevents American publishers from supplying thru the ordinary business channels the English demand for such works by United States authors. This situation may result in very serious losses, more especially to those American authors whose works might be the basis for lucrative motion-picture rights or profitable dramatic representation, and to American composers of music who, if protected, could profitably dispose of their rights to authorize the making of perforated music rolls or phonographic records from their music.

So far as the authors of Great Britain and their brother authors of the great English colonial commonwealths are concerned, the protection securable in the United States for their literary productions under our copyright relations is also inadequate and must, besides, seem unreasonably burdened with difficult and unusual conditions. A comparison of the actual copyright situation of British authors with that of United States authors, so far as securing reciprocal protection in the other country is concerned, shows marked and unfavorable differences. While the unpublished works of American authors are now protected in Great Britain without any formalities, exactly as if the authors of such works were British subjects, or were resident within Great Britain, the British author in order to secure copyright in the United States for such unpublished works as are protected by copyright must file a claim for registration, together with a copy of the work or an identifying reproduction of it if it be a work of art, and must also pay a fee for each registration made.

In the case of published works the inequality is still more marked. An American author can secure copyright in Great Britain by simply placing his work on sale there simultaneously with, or within 14 days after, publication of the work in the United States. There is no obligation to manufacture the work abroad, or to register it, or to insert any notice of copyright in it. In the case of a book it is not required that it be printed or bound in Great Britain; copies of the American edition can be sold there without restriction. The only absolute obligation upon the American author (imposed upon the British author as well) is the deposit of one copy of the author's book in the British Museum. In addition, if a written demand for any specific book is made within one year after its publication by any one or more of five other great British libraries, such book must also be delivered for the use of the library.

Our copyright laws require of the British author that one copy of his work (since Mar. 28, 1914, formerly two) be deposited for registration; the manufacture in the United States of lithographs and photo-engravings, and, in the case of books, that theey be printed in the United States from type set within the United States, and also that an affidavit of such American typesetting be filed. The United States notice of copyright must appear in all copies sold or distributed in the United States, and copies of the original authorized edition of the English author's book are prohibited importation for sale, except under special restrictions. [See sec. 31, 32, 33.]

The result has been that only a small proportion of the books published from year to year in Great Britain have been republished and copyrighted in the United States. An examination of the "English Catalogue," which records yearly the titles of the books published in Great Britain, with the recorded entries in our Copyright Office goes to show that less than one-tenth of the books produced in England have been republished in the United States and thus made available for American readers and students, and that the republication which has taken place has been mainly of popular works, such as novels, etc.

With a view to facilitate compliance with its typesetting stipulations, the act of March 4, 1909, provides that upon the deposit and registration in the Copyright Office of a copy of an English book, not later than 30 days after its publication in England, an ad interim protection for 30 days may be secured, and if an American edition of the book (type set in the United States) is published during these last 30 days, the copyright is extended to 28 years. During the eight years or more since the act of 1909 went into effect some 3000 ad interim registrations have been made, or for about 300 different books each year. While these 30-day ad interim provisions may be advantageous and sufficient in the case of a few well-known authors having established relations with American publishers who are accustomed to republish English books, they are of little or no value to the new, unknown, or little-known English author who cannot hold back the date of publication of his book in London, and who fails to secure promptly a publisher in the United States. The Copyright Office records clearly demonstrate that both 30-day terms are too short to be really helpful. In about 5 per cent of the applications received there has been failure to make deposit within the prescribed 30 days after first publication; and of the English books actually registered for ad interim protection hardly more than one-third have been finally republished in the United States. A certain proportion of the books which were reprinted, moreover, have not been published in the United States within the 30 days of the ad interim term and therefore have not fully complied with the law's requirement. It is to be observed that in all cases where the ad interim registration is followed by an American edition, two registrations must be made, two fees paid, and three copies, in all, of each book must be deposited.

These special requirements of our copyright act—insertion of copyright notice, deposit of copies, and registration—are generally absent from foreign copyright legislation, being either not required at all, or only in part; but never as a condition precedent to the securing of copyright. They actually result, therefore, in barring foreign authors from securing copyright in the United States for the greater number of their literary productions.[15]

The foreign countries with which we have established copyright relations may be divided into three groups to indicate the different character of the protection secured and the practical variances upon which it is based. With the Central and South American States which have ratified the treaty of 1910, we have an agreement that the acknowledgment of copyright in a work by a citizen of any one country and its publication in that country with a notice of copyright shall secure its protection in all of the other signatory countries without further conditions or formalities. With the continental countries of Europe the protection secured in the United States by presidential proclamation depends upon the obligatory deposit of copies and compulsory registration, while in the case of Great Britain and the British self-governing dominions the protection securable in the United States is greatly circumscribed by the stringent conditions imposed which are often very difficult to comply with.

The above summary of our established international copyright relations indicates the need for amendment. Literary and artistic property protection in this country should be uniform and equal, with no differences or distinctions based upon the nationality of the author, and should be free from inequality in the conditoins or formalities imposed upon the author or his publisher.

The leading European countries, including all the foreign countries with which we have copyright relations, except Austria-Hungary, have joined in forming the International Copyright Union, based upon the conventions of Berne (1886), Paris (1896), and Berlin (1908). In the protection accorded to the authors benefited by membership in this very practical and effective Union is seen the high-water mark of international literary-property protection. The authors of each country of the Union are guaranteed security for their works, by the terms of the convention creating the Union, in all the other countries of the Union without conditions or formalities of any kind. It has long been the desire of American authors to secure to themselves this literary world-citizenship by the entrance of the United States into the International Copyright Union, so that every citizen of the United States upon the publication of his work in his own country should thereby be assured of his complete control of it—of its republication, translation, dramatization, or other legitimate use—in all the other great countries of the world. This step forward probably cannot be taken without antecedent copyright legislation by Congress to prepare the way. Meantime, in the convention of 1910 between the United States and Latin-

[15] The "Bibliographie de la France" lists more than 5000 books as published in France during the year 1916. Our "Catalogue of Copyright Entries" for books contains the titles of only 184 French works during the year 1916.

American countries an attempt was made to secure effective international protection for intellectual productions free from troublesome conditions and formalities, and that treaty might possibly serve as a model for a similar convention between the United States and our allies, France, Belgium, and Italy, as well as other European countries.

The present most urgent need is some remedy for the serious defects in our copyright relations with Great Britain. What should be accomplished is complete security, not only in Great Britain and the United States, but in all the British self-governing dominions as well, for all literary and artistic works by the authors of each of these countries, no matter in which country their works shall have been first produced.

In view of the new and important relations now established between the United States and Great Britain, the time is opportune for bringing about a more friendly and effectual union of all the English-speaking peoples of the world on a basis of mutual trust and equal consideration. Much might be achieved in this direction if a formal agreement could be entered into by the respective governments for the reciprocal security of literary and artistic productions based upon a broad and liberal treatment of the various questions involved. Such a convention or treaty for the protection of intellectual property might go far toward cementing relations of inestimable and permanent value.

COPYRIGHT EVENTS AND LEADING AMERICAN CASES IN 1917

THE following schedule, continuing the chronological table of cases for previous years in Bowker's "Copyright," and the succeeding summaries for 1912, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916 in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, the AMERICAN LIBRARY ANNUAL and the AMERICAN BOOK TRADE MANUAL (1914 only), gives leading American copyright cases decided or recorded in 1917, together with a list of principal events in legislation and treaty relations. Cases of minor importance, settling no principle, but dealing only with details of procedure or applying settled principles to specific cases, are not covered. The schedule covers the name of the court, the name of the judge presiding or giving the opinion, and also a condensed statement of the points decided, with page reference to the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY report.

REPORT OF LIBRARIAN OF CONGRESS

Growth of America's Largest Literary Repository

PUBLISHERS are inclined to regard the Library of Congress as a great many people seem to regard the church: they contribute what they must towards its support as a matter of personal insurance and dismiss the whole business from their thoughts until a birth or a wedding or a death—or, in the case of the publisher, a copyright infringement—sends them scurrying to its shelter. The work of the Library of Congress can be viewed from two angles: as the largest and most romantic agglomeration of book writing, publishing and selling propaganda, the most imposing monument to the value of the printed page in America; or, on the somewhat more practical side, as the publishers' best friend in the matter of the extension of the local and international protection of their wares.

According to the latest report of the Librarian of Congress, just issued, the great gold domed building in Washington houses more than two and a half million printed books and pamphlets, nearly 160,000 maps and charts, 800,000 volumes and pieces of music, and 400,000 prints, in addition to a considerable number of original manuscripts. The books and pamphlets alone increase each year by approximately 85,000 items. Something of the vastness of the work of the Library on the one side that keeps this stream of annual acquisitions in all departments well above the 100,000 mark even in war-time is apparent from even a partial analysis of the list of accessions of books and pamphlets in 1917 submitted by the librarian in his report: 17,348 were acquired by purchases here and abroad by agents of the Library, 12,100 by gift, 9619 by international exchange, 11,095 as gifts from State governments, 623 as gifts from corporations and associations, 14,738 thru deposit of copies at copyright, 1962 from the Smithsonian, 3014 by exchange—and so on until the total of 85,948 is made up. For instance, in addition to regular consignments from the ninety-one countries on the international exchange list, shipments of books and pamphlets were received in 1917, in response to special requests, in part as follows: Agra and Oudh 46, Antigua 44, British Guiana 47, British East Africa 15, Falkland Islands 16, Malay States 54, St. Christopher and Nevis 14, etc.

The most important accession by gift during the year was the collection of Whistleriana presented by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pennell, the authorized biographers of James McNeil Whistler. The collection consists of fourteen cases of books by and about Whistler and his art, several hundred unpublished letters, and the most complete collection of Whistler prints, etchings, etc., in existence. The press cuttings and magazine clippings alone fill some sixty folio volumes. There are also numerous manuscripts by Whistler and by the Pennells written at his dictation. The collection is now in London and owing to the submarine danger will not be brought to America until after the war.

Accessions of all manner of original documents are constantly being made which make the Library the greatest repository of archives, especially of Americana, on the continent.

Another activity of the Library is the publishing of valuable but commercially unsaleable records of our early history. Notable among these is the "Journals of the Continental Congress" kept by Charles Thompson. This colossal work was begun in 1904, and according to the Librarian of Congress, is "the largest piece of editing by one person ever undertaken by the Government, if we except the 'American archives' of Peter Force." Twenty-three volumes are ready and more are to follow.

A survey of the extent of the Library's business on the copyright registration side is furnished by the following table of registrations for copyright in the years 1911-12 to 1916-17 inclusive:

NEW YORK DEALERS ENDORSE CENTRAL BOOK EXCHANGE

TWENTY-SIX members of the Booksellers of the City of New York met at an informal dinner at the Advertising Club on Monday evening to discuss the inauguration of a Central Book and Parcel Exchange in New York modeled on the system now in successful operation in Holland. According to the proposed plan a central co-operative clearing house would be established to receive and re-distribute to the various publishers the daily orders from all booksellers; the books called for all over the city would then be delivered at one trip by each publisher to the clearing house, which would in turn collect the packages for each bookseller and deliver them to him in regular deliveries —probably twice daily. The plan, which has already been endorsed by a special committee of the Board of Managers of the Booksellers' League, met with very favorable comment and the chairman was instructed to appoint a committee to investigate the proposal and report on it in detail. Full details of the proposed plan so far as they have been formulated will appear in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for February 2.

TYPO BOOK-TRADE STATISTICS FOR 1917

FOLLOWING are the annual statistics for the retail book-trade for 1917 compiled by the Typo Mercantile Agency, which, thru its careful credit work, is an important factor in the reduction of the credit losses of publishers:

NEW YORK STATE BOOKSELLERS TO ORGANIZE

THE Booksellers of the City of New York on Monday adopted the proposal to organize a State Branch of the American Booksellers' Association, to be known as The American Booksellers' Association of the State of New York. President Butler is accordingly sending out the following call to the booksellers of the state:

"All members of all branches of the retail book-trade in the state are urged to become active members of the state association. Those who are members of the "Booksellers of the City of New York," and also of the American Booksellers' Association are strongly urged in addition to become active members of the state organization. The expense for membership will be slight.

"There is great need for a strong working organization of all classes of booksellers in this entire state to co-operate for the conservation of bookselling therein, and for trade reforms. We must get together and we must fight together.

"Let nothing prevent you from performing so small a function as this. Let us—as a united body—drive ahead and accomplish things for the benefit of all. There are big things to do, much legislation to ask for. The Booksellers of the City of New York have done a few big things right here at home. Join at once by sending your name.

CHARLES E. BUTLER,
President, Booksellers of the City of New York,
225 Fifth Avenue, New York."

LESSON III

Dictionaries

"We find on our table quite an exhaustive treatise on various subjects written in Mr. Webster's well-known lucid and piquant style. There is not a dull line between the covers of the book. The range of subjects is wide, and the treatment light and easy without being flippant. A valuable feature of the work is the arranging of the articles in alphabetical order, thus facilitating the finding of any particular word desired. Mr. Webster's vocabulary is large, and he always uses the right word in the right place. Mr. Webster's work is thorough, and we predict that he will be heard from again."—O. Henry. From "O. Henry Biography" by C. Alphonso Smith. Doubleday.

A DICTIONARY is the foundation of a library, the reader's most indispensable book. Seven well-known dictionaries are on the market. A bookseller should be able to describe certain features peculiar to each of these dictionaries, and to help a customer choose among them.

FIVE AMERICAN DICTIONARIES

"Webster's New International Dictionary." G. & C. Merriam Co., Springfield; $12.
"Worcester's Standard Dictionary." J. B. Lippincott; $10.
"Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia." Century Co.; $60. 6 vols.
"Standard Dictionary." Funk & Wagnalls; $12.
"Universal Self-Pronouncing Dictionary." J. C. Winston Co.; $1.60 (cloth, indexed).

The list is in the order of their seniority and excellence.

POINTS ABOUT THE DICTIONARIES

Webster's New International won the highest award at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. It contains 400,000 words. The divided page is a feature peculiar to it alone. Words less frequent, obsolete, or scientific are taken out of the main text and listed in the lower half of the page. The Appendix contains a Gazetteer and a Biographical dictionary. Webster deliberately aims to reduce the main body of the work by weeding out as many terms as possible. Webster's dictionary is international—that is, it caters to the British as well as to the Americans. It pronounces Trait either as Trait or as Tray, and Schedule either as Skedule or as Shedule. If a customer uses a broad A, always sell her a "New International." Noah Webster was the first editor (not Daniel).

"Worcester's Dictionary" for 75 years has been the leading authority for pronunciation, just as Webster's has led in definition. Worcester's is a high class, conservative dictionary which follows the best American usage. In its latest revision, 12,500 new words and a vocabulary of synonyms have been added.

The "Century Dictionary" is published in 6 volumes. For those who see a disadvantage in many volumes, a smaller, one-volumed edition of the "Century" has just been published. The "Century's" strongest point has always been its technical terms of the sciences, arts, and trades. Its pictorial illustrations have been done by well-known artists. Ernest Seton-Thompson did over 1000 illustrations, which are signed with his initials E. E. T. S., the baptismal form of his name. The "Cyclopedia of Names" and the "Century Atlas" form valuable supplements to the "Dictionary."

The "Standard Dictionary" is a great innovator in lexicography. It gives reformed spelling as well as current spelling. It gives the present-day meaning of a word first, and its primitive meaning last. The derivations follow the definitions, thus reversing the traditional order in dictionaries. For instance, Bedlam to-day means a tumult, an uproar. Its earlier meaning was an insane asylum, and its earliest meaning was the London hospital of St. Mary of Bethlehem, Bedlam being a corruption of Bethlehem. The "Standard" gives antonyms as well as synonyms, and locates quotations to the very page. The "Standard" claims 50,000 words more than "Webster."

The "Universal Self-Pronouncing Dictionary" is the most up-to-date dictionary, being especially rich in war terms. It is the best value for the cost.

Dictionaries of late years, by trying to outdo one another, have outdone themselves. They have trespassed upon encyclopedias, and are no longer the mere word catalogs, the collective biographies of words, which they once were. Much of the information in a dictionary has no business there. Philologists have claimed that illustrations do not belong in a dictionary. Words should be defined by words, not by pictures. The fewer the illustrations, the better the dictionary. With their present encyclopedic nature, there is no sort of miscellaneous information that one may not expect to find in a dictionary, and none that one can be sure of finding. The modern dictionary is a classical dictionary, a gazetteer, a Who's Who, a thesaurus of words and phrases, a handbook of proverbs—all in one. It has usurped the office of all these other books. It claims to be a dictionary of the English language on the title page, but in the text it is a dictionary of much foreign language besides.

Comparisons are odious and distinctions often invidious, but, nevertheless, a bookseller must make them to himself if not to his customer. Consider then whether an excess of 50,000 words in one dictionary argues a deficiency in other dictionaries. Vocabularies can be indefinitely swollen by the multiplication of compound words and of negative terms. Thirty-six columns of formatives in "un" merely increase the size and cost of a book. To be told what Head means in twenty-seven different connections, and then to have to be told what Head-ache, Head-dress, Head-work mean as well, seems to show that dictionaries are made for the stupidest of mankind. Phrases are a valuable inclusion in dictionaries, but their alphabetic order is unreliable. Volcanic wood is found in the V's, and Volcanic sand in the S's. Jack Frost, Jack Ketch, Jack Sprat are in the J's, while Jack Horner is found in the H's. That is why a smaller dictionary that abridges the accessories of the language is often a better and quicker working tool for an intelligent reader.

ENGLISH DICTIONARIES

There are two English dictionaries which every bookseller ought to know, altho their sale is limited nearly entirely to institutions.

"The Oxford Dictionary," edited by Sir James Murray. Oxford Univ. Press; 8 volumes, $185.00
"An Etymological Dictionary of the English Language," by W. W. Skeat. Oxford, Clarendon Press; $15.20.

The story of the making of the Oxford dictionary reads like a romance. A "scriptorium" was built and its walls lined with pigeonholes, each containing the life history of a word. Volunteers all over the world read books to find various uses of words. One contributor, who was singled out for his valuable notes, proved to be the inmate of an insane asylum. The greatest feature of the Oxford dictionary is its wealth of quotations illustrating the different sense employment of words in the writings of various authors. Above all it gives the first record of the word in literature, when possible. The beloved scholar, Sir James Murray, lived to see only eight volumes of the dictionary, which is to be completed in ten volumes. His editorship stopped at the word "turned down."

Skeat's "Etymological Dictionary" gives the history of selected words of curious or of disputed derivation. Words pass thru strange evolutions of meaning. The Bible and Shakespeare have perpetuated many lost meanings which Skeat alone can explain to us. For instance, "we spend our days as a tale that is told" does not mean "as a story that is recited" but "as sheep are counted." Cinderella's slipper was not of glass but of fur. How it came to be called glass, is a word story found in Skeat.

SMALLER DICTIONARIES

Only the large "parent" dictionaries are here given. The various abridgments usually contain the same faults and merits as the larger volumes; various editions and prices may be had by reference to the "Trade List Annual." An unrivalled small dictionary is the "Concise Oxford," condensed from the $185 edition; the prices have recently been raised to $2 (cloth); $3 (thin paper cloth); $4.75 (half morocco); $5 (Alaska seal).

NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS TO PUSH WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

A WHOLESALE and Retail Booksellers' War Savings Stamp Committee has been formed in New York, with H. S. Baker, of the Baker & Taylor Co., as chairman, C. A. Burkhardt, secretary, L. A. Keating, director of speakers, F. C. J. Tessaro, director of publicity, T. E. Schulte, director of subsidiary War Saving Stamp Societies in individual bookstores, and the following other members, C. R. Crowell, of the Doubleday, Page book-shops, W. S. McKeachie, of the Baker & Taylor Co., Chas. E. Butler, of Brentano's, and A. R. Womrath, of the New Fiction Library.

The committee held a luncheon at the Aldine Club on Friday of this week and arranged to send notices immediately asking dealers to apply to the committee for the privilege of selling the stamps in their stores. The chairman is anxious to enlist every retail bookseller in New York City in this patriotic work.

JUDGE DEFINES RIGHTS OF LITERARY CRITICS

IN a suit for $50,000 brought by Alleyne Ireland against the Chicago Evening Post for alleged libel in the latter's criticism of his book, "Joseph Pulitzer—Reminiscences of a Secretary," Judge Goff in the New York Supreme Court on Wednesday set aside the publishers' demurrer and held the case for hearing before a jury, on the ground that he "cannot say that it does not involve a question of fact" as to whether it is fair criticism.

At the same time, however, Judge Goff rendered the following illuminating opinion on the interesting question as to just how far literary criticism can go without becoming libelous.

"Having published the book," said Justice Goff, "the plaintiff submitted it to the judgment of the public, and the criticism of those who felt inclined to express their opinion of the book. The law does not give to an author such monopoly of expression as to preclude dissent, or comment, or criticism. If such were the rule it would mean intellectual stagnation and prevention of exposure of error. It does require, however, that the comment or criticism must be fair, and that it must not be used as a cover or mask for the venting of personal animus. If the matter criticised be dealt with on its merits or demerits, no matter how severely, if even criticism or mordant ridicule be employed to expose exaggeration or pretence or bad taste, the bounds of fair criticism will not be exceeded.

"As to what is fair criticism there can be no hard and fast rule. Criticism has not been reduced to an exact science. Its quality must depend upon the thing or matter criticized and the capacity or motive of the critic. The law does not attempt to define it. It says, however, that it must be free from malevolence and confined to the subject matter, without pursuit of the author into the private or personal relations of life."

PERSONAL NOTES

JEROME E. BRUCH is now in charge of the Doubleday, Page Liberty Tower Book-Shop.

EDWARD L. DEAN, after two and a half years as rare book man at Wanamaker's, New York, has resigned.

DAVID A. MCKINLAY, of McKinlay, Stone & MacKenzie, has been added to the Book Publishers' Committee on War Savings Stamps.

FRED DE VILBISS has severed his connections with Paul Elder & Co., and is now with the Book Department of the White House (Raphael Weill & Co.), San Francisco, Cal.

CHARLES J. HEROLD, for eleven years with the Frederick A. Stokes Co., has resigned to take charge of the manufacturing department of Barse & Hopkins, taking up his new duties January 21.

O. G. SONNECK, for the past fifteen years chief of the Music Division of the Library of Congress, is now with G. Schirmer, for whom he was already editing the Musical Quarterly. As chief of the Music Division Mr. Sonneck brought that department of the Library of Congress from obscurity to a position challenged by but few collections the world over.

IN THE LIST of Britons admitted to the peerage by receiving knighthood at New Year's time appear the names of "Anthony Hope" (Anthony Hope Hawkins), and Sidney J. Low, author and journalist. The name of John Galsworthy was included in the list as first published, knighthood having been offered him, but it is officially announced that it appeared thru an error. It is learned that Mr. Galsworthy begged to be allowed to decline the honor. Sir Henry Norman, journalist and author, graduate of Harvard University, has been made Privy Councilor.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES

MR. UPDIKE and Mr. Bianchi of the Merrymount Press, Boston, sent out a unique and attractive New Year's greeting to their friends in the shape of a chiaroscuro wood-cut showing the soldiers drilling at Camp Devens, Massachusetts.

WHAT THE WAR will come to mean to the fathers and mothers of America is brought home in Dana Gatlin's "The Full Measure of Devotion," published this week by Doubleday, Page & Co. The words are Lincoln's and the story shows the Lincoln spirit awakened in the hearts of a modern father and mother called to make the supreme sacrifice.

THE Boston Museum of Fine Arts has decided to suspend the publication of the Print-Collector's Quarterly for the duration of the war. The December number just issued will be followed by a full index of the entire series. Notice regarding subscriptions will in due course be given by the publishers, Houghton Mifflin Company.

IT WAS inevitable that Gertrude Atherton should give us a novel of the war. "The White Morning" to be published January 31st by the Frederick H. Stokes Co. will command even more than the usual interest which Mrs. Atherton's work calls forth. The novel answers the question "Will German Women Stop the War?" and deals with the German revolution which may come.

THE PUBLIC is still eager for war books which represent genuine experiences. A new one to be published February 15 by D. Appleton & Co. is "Under Four Flags For France," by an American, Captain George Clarke Musgrave, who has been on the western front almost continuously since the war began. He tells the progress of the war step by step from the day the Germans entered Belgium until the arrival of the American troops in France.

ALL OF the quaintness and atmosphere of long ago that the word Salem connotes is to be found in Mary H. Northend's "Memories of Old Salem," recently published by Moffat, Yard & Co. The book pictures colonial Salem thru the medium of a story hinging on the discovery of old letters in the back of a picture frame. It is amply illustrated with photographs of old Salem houses and furniture.

HURST & Co. have taken over the following juvenile series formerly published by Platt & Peck (now Platt & Nourse) and the Mershon Co. Rahway, N. J.: the Dorothy Books by Evelyn Raymond, 11 volumes; Frontier Boys by Capt. Wyn Roosevelt; Victor Boy Scout Books by Ralph Victor; Dare Boys Series by Stephen Angus Cox; 30 volumes in Mrs. L. T. Meade's Series for Girls, American edition; and 35 volumes of the same author's juveniles in the girl graduate edition.

THE WAR is making authors of many who a few years ago would have laughed at the idea of ever seeing themselves in print, but Patrick MacGill, private soldier with the London Irish in France, was an author before he became a soldier. He is best known perhaps by "The Rat Pit," a well executed, realistic novel picturing low life and said to be largely autobiographical. His two war books, "The Red Horizon" and "The Great Push," are now followed by "The Brown Brethren," a story of the London Irish in France, to be published by the George H. Doran Co.

AMONG THE RECENT publications of the Oxford University Press are several scholarly works on various phases of European history. "The Provocation of France" by J. C. Bracq covers fifty years of German aggression. "The Balkans" by Dr. Neville Forbes, A. J. Toynbee and D. Mitrany is a history of Bulgaria, Serbia, Greece, Rumania and Turkey. "The Eastern Question" by J. A. Marriott is an historical study in European diplomacy presenting the Balkan problem from the Turks' first European activity to Constantine's high-handedness in Greece.

THE LATEST of the "hundred-best-books," "five-foot-shelf" ideas is to be found in "A Library for Five Pounds" by Sir William Robertson Nicoll, published in England by Hodder and Stoughton. The selections, chiefly from Everyman's Library and the Oxford World's Classics, are wisely made from the "literature of imagination" which De Quincey called the "literature of power," altho Darwin's "Origin of Species" and Macaulay's "History," included in Sir William's list, might be considered by some as exceptions.

THE PUTNAMS announce for publication this month a "Field Book of Insects, with Special Reference to Those of Northeastern United States, Aiming to Answer Common Questions," by Frank E. Lutz, Associate Curator, Department of Invertebrate Zoology, American Museum of National History. This book contains hints concerning collecting, breeding, preserving, and classifying insects, and outlines of interesting or economically important insect life histories. Especial stress has been laid upon those things which may be observed out-of-doors, leaving the study of detailed anatomy and the naming of difficult or rare species to books necessarily too bulky to be carried about.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS of John Wiley & Sons include books on chemistry, mathematics, forestry, pharmacy, metallurgy, chemical technology, mining, surveying and various other departments of engineering—in fact nearly every field for the technical worker. The department of chemistry, for instance, as represented by such solid works: Effront-Prescott's "Biochemical Catalysts in Life and Industry"; Haskins' "Organic Chemistry"; Ostwold-Fischer's "Introduction to Theoretical and Applied Chemistry"; Schimf's "Qualitative Chemical Analysis"; Smith's "Lecture-Notes on Chemistry for Dental Students"; and Zsigmondy-Spear's "Chemistry of Colloids."

IT IS JUST twenty years since "David Harum" first saw the light. In that time more than a million copies have been sold. Recognizing the substantial position the book holds in American literature, the Syracuse Public Library, proud of its association with the birth-place of the author, has for the past year collected material for a "David Harum" exhibit, which is now in place. This includes the first type-written manuscript of the book, the manuscript which the Appletons used as copy, portraits of Edward Noyes Westcott, a piece of manuscript music written with his own hand, copies of the different editions of the book, portraits of William H. Crane in the stage version of the story, both on the regular stage and in the movies, and scrapbooks kept by Mrs. William H. Crane, Mr. Forbes Heermans, and Mrs. Victor Morawetz, the daughter of the author.

THOSE WHO BELIEVE that all popular books by well known writers are "dashed off" will be interested in Samuel Merwin's response to a passage in a recent review in Reedy's Mirror, which stated that "Temperamental Henry" showed carelessness and crudity of diction as a result of hasty writing: "I first began jotting down the notes for 'Temperamental Henry'," says Mr. Merwin, "twelve years ago. During these years I made several starts at the job of writing it. Finally, two years ago, I began it in earnest. The actual writing of a book of about 90,000 words, certainly fewer than 100,000, took me a little more than a year. Anyone who knows anything of the history of fiction, including much great writing, will understand that this is not particularly rapid work. Stevenson wrote, and rewrote, 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' in six working days. And Arnold Bennett wrote 'The Old Wives' Tale' within seven months. Parts of 'Temperamental Henry' were rewritten between twenty and forty times. One of the episodes was three months in the writing, another two months."

In order to give the trade the advantage of an extra discount for early orders, the Automobile Blue Book Publishing Co. are now announcing the 1918 edition of the "Automobile Blue Books." Volumes 1-5, 7, 9, "New York State and Adjacent Canada," "New England and Maritime Provinces," "New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and West Virginia," "Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky," "Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Missouri," "Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana," "Washington, Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia," will be ready May first; volumes 1 and 8, "The Southeastern States," and "California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona" are now ready; and volumes A and C, "New York City Metropolitan Blue Book" and "Chicago Metropolitan Blue Book" will be issued May 15. Every volume of these complete road guides for touring motorists is greatly enlarged and will contain many additional features. The 1918 volumes average 1000 pages, printed on India paper with many illustrations, maps, indexes and cross references.

Special Libraries for December has an interesting article on "Russian Scientific Literature" by Raphael Zon of the Forestry Department of our government. On account of the excellent Russian index system, including not only books but articles in magazines relating to a subject, scientific works can be readily located, according to Mr. Zon. The universality of Russian scientific literature is noteworthy, too, in that translations of articles from every other language are constantly being made. "Practically every Russian scientific magazine has a separate department devoted to translations. The Russians have the knack of finding out a good article, no matter in what language it is, and having it translated and made available for scientific men." Another characteristic is the comprehensiveness of most Russian scientific articles, which are seldom fragmentary. Another characteristic of this class of literature in Russia is the large number of excellent popular scientific books. Russia is said to be particularly strong in her literature on forestry. The first book on this subject in Russia appeared as early as 1766: "Description of the Naturally Growing Forests in the Northern Provinces of Russia." In 1878 indexes of standard books and periodical articles on forestry were issued from the Imperial Forest Institute at Petrograd. This index has been twice revised, and in 1903 a bibliography of forestry books for the 18th and 19th centuries appeared. There are at present in Russia two periodicals devoted exclusively to forestry, a number of others to agriculture and forestry, besides the transactions of the several forest institutions.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES

If a second-hand bookseller ever discourages of his high calling, the mouldy dust on his shelves beclouding perhaps the clearness of his vision, let him but recall that Joseph Conrad found the plot for "Nostromo" in a "shabby volume picked up outside a second-hand book-shop."

(Back section, unspecified position)
One page	30 00
Half page	17 00
Quarter page	9 00
Eighth page	5 00
One-sixteenth page	2 50

The above rates are for unspecified positions. Special rates for preferred positions (full pages only).

Higher rates are charged for the Summer Reading, Educational Number and Christmas Bookshelf, and for the monthly Book Review supplement sections.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a gurantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 15 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

THERE IS NOTHING MORE EXASPERATING

Than to find a number of typographical errors in a completed book. Our proof readers are human, and consequently not infallible, but here are some of the things that have been said about them:

"Many thanks . . . for well read and corrected galleys. I found only one error to correct; something unusual in my experience with former printer."

"The proof just received is remarkably clean."

We might quote more of the same nature—and we may, later on.

THE ONLY RATING BOOK DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO THE BOOK TRADE

¶ Every big industry in the country, EXCEPT, Book Publishing, has for years had its own Rating Book covering its OWN PARTICULAR FIELD, and devoted exclusively to its own special needs. Book Publishers, on the other hand, have been compelled to use bulky Rating Books embracing multitudinous other lines in which they are in no way interested, and in which the Book Trade played a most insignificant part. Book Publishers have felt this keenly.

¶ At the suggestion of several, the great task of establishing such an individual service for the Book Publishing Trade has been taken up, and after months of endeavor, the very FIRST RATING BOOK EVER DEVOTED EXCLUSIVELY TO THE BOOK TRADE IS READY FOR DELIVERY. This new Rating Book has been compiled by Credit Experts of seventeen years experience and should be on the desk of every Credit Man and Sales Manager and in the pocket of every Book Salesman.

¶ There are about 6,000 names listed, all rated; first, as to their capital; second, their standing in the trade; third, how they pay their bills. Street addresses are given in large cities. NO CONCERNS ARE LISTED EXCEPT THOSE THAT HANDLE BOOKS, but the list contains not only the general book stores, but also all Department. Stationery, General, Drug and Jewelry stores which have a book department. It is a question of but a short time when this Rating Book, Reporting and Collection Service will be accepted as the STANDARD in the Book Trade.

By HAROLD R. PEAT
PRIVATE PEAT

After two years in Hell he is back with a smile and has written the greatest of all war books on life in the trenches. For anxious fathers and mothers of American boys.

Dr. Garfield, National Fuel Administrator, says: "Private Peat stirs meetings to a marvelous pitch of enthusiasm with his talks, and has a special power for bringing home to the American people the serious nature of their part in the great war. Illustrated with sixteen photographs, collected by the author. Price, $1.50 net.

By IRVING BACHELLER
THE LIGHT IN THE CLEARING

A novel that will live as long as Americans love their country and are proud of their honest, sturdy, self-sacrificing ancestors. It's a great book about a great time in our country's life,—and a deeply interesting and wisely humorous romance as well. Liberty Edition now ready with autograph letter by the author and Pictures by Keller. Cloth. $1.50 net.

By PAUL KESTER
HIS OWN COUNTRY

A great novel on a great national problem. But first of all an intensely dramatic and gripping story.

Timely, yet a book of permanent value. Read and be informed.

Unillustrated. 692 pages. Cloth. $1.50 net.

By SAMUEL MERWIN
TEMPERAMENTAL HENRY

A new character in fiction. We laugh at him, we weep over him, blame him and praise him, but always we feel the irresistible spell of youth. Don't fail to meet Clem. Illustrated by Mulford. Cloth. $1.50 net.

By ETHEL HUESTON
SUNNY SLOPES

The story of two sisters, one married and the other thinking she doesn't want to be. An inspiration to cheerful living.

Pictures by Brown. Cloth. $1.40 net.

By TALBOT MUNDY
THE WINDS OF THE WORLD

Author of "King, of the Khyber Rifles."

A thrilling, dashing romance of German intrigue in mysterious India.

Illustrated by Coll. Cloth. $1.50 net.

By CLAUDE MICHELON
TAKE ME TO FRANCE

A French phrase book for the American soldier. Correct, complete, compact. Everything the soldier needs to know. It fits in the pocket. The author is late of the French Army. Illustrated. 4⅞ x 6⅜ inches. $1.00 net.
